Indian Territory is no longer I. T.

The Chicago man who fell into a barrel of red paint must have felt mad enough to go out and give the town a coat.

Now that fashion's decree calls for "curvaceous women," there may be less nature faking done by the fair sex for a while.

However, the Cherokee Indian who is booked for the United States senate from Oklahoma is a millionaire. So perhaps he'll do.

It is a trifle difficult for the average man to understand how the proposed investigation of the coffin trust is going to affect the cost of living.

"I am a woman as well as a singer," says Calve. "The woman is not for the public. I shall marry whom I care to. That is for me to decide." Bravo!

It is not believed that Mr. Taft will find it very hard to overcome the desire to mail a few picture post cards to Senator Foraker while he is making his tour around the globe.

Although Senator Tillman has been lecturing all summer, it is more than likely that he will be in the mood to lecture the senate as soon as it convenes in December.

"Baseball playing is demoralizing," says a Milwaukee Y. M. C. A. leader. The kind the Globe team put up at Cananea has certainly demoralized the hopes of the rosters.

The reported heavy losses of Mr. Rogers in a new railroad undertaking recall the familiar complaint of the woman who conducted the fruit stand. What she made on the peanuts she frequently lost on the bananas.

A Richmond express wagon driver named Bert Wildbore, who inherited $5,000,000, immediately began to write his name "Robert Newton Wildbore." After a while his riches may make of him another kind of a bore.

"I approve of President Roosevelt and all of his policies," says Senator Depew. That's what Mr. Roosevelt gets for adopting a policy of silence on the question of the resignation of New York's senators.

Tom Johnson's opponent for the mayoralty having been described as a "tall, dark man," the New York Herald wonders if he is "coming with a bundle." Undoubtedly. With a bundle of speeches containing words, words, words.

The Birmingham Age-Herald claims to have discovered that an Ohio man can smoke and breathe through his left ear, thus leaving his mouth free to talk politics. And when his mouth gets tired he can probably talk with his fingers.

There are all kinds of big game down in the Louisiana cane brakes, excepting bloated millionaires, rebaters and bad corporations. Bears, deer and bobcats, not to mention lizards, scorpions, snakes and muskrats, will do for a change in presidential gunning.

THE IDEAL PLAY

At the invitation of the New York Times, several leading actors and theatrical managers have courageously undertaken to answer the question, "What is the ideal play?"

Some of the participants in the symposium realized that no answer was possible. Mary Manning, for example, cannot "conceive of there being an ideal play," and Carlotta Nilsson and George Broadhurst are as one in holding that it has not been written. Miss Nilsson goes further; she does not think that it can be written. And in that the actress shows a keen appreciation of the meaning of the question she was asked to answer, for, after all, an ideal would cease to be an ideal if it were realized.

No such considerations trouble Robert Edeson, who takes the parish-pump view that the ideal play must be "a strictly American play by an American playwright upon American subjects and with American characters." What a happy mental condition Mr. Edeson must possess, for there are scores of plays which meet his narrow conditions.

As might be expected, Daniel Frohman approaches the subject from a more philosophical standpoint. He holds that the "ideal play should deal with ideal motives, more especially with the one universal aspiration of human life, that of love which leads to marriage." To point his moral, Mr. Frohman cites "Romeo and Juliet" as the play which meets his definition, and it is a significant commentary on his choice that that play never fails of appeal to the cultivated and the less cultivated playgoer alike.

But the discussion, although interesting from many aspects, cannot issue as a definite result. As the various contributors insist, the question resolves itself into the point of view. There are no rules available whereby an absolute standard can be set up. The ideal in the drama, as in other matters, is but relative, after all.

AMUSEMENTS

Dreamland's Opening Attraction
West's Minstrels, coming to Dreamland October 2 and 3, will be the opening attraction of this popular place of amusement. Of the minstrels the Peoria Evening Journal says:

West's minstrels, with perhaps the best singing chorus in the history of the organization, royally entertained a large audience at the Majestic last evening. It was opening night for the season and while minstrels are seldom used for such an occasion, yet, it can readily be seen that no error was made. West's Minstrels, while not claiming to be the largest on earth, are in many ways the superior of the many similar organizations. This is true in the ability of the artists employed, if not in the number employed. This can be readily understood when mention is made of such excellent comedians as George Van and Billy Graham and with the inimitable interlocutors as Stanford Rickey and Lloyd Balliet. The old this season is very good, the closing sketch, "My Old Kentucky Home," making possible one of the prettiest scenes minstrelsy ever produced. The man in white, Major Fred Smith, is good at baton manipulation, but his work with the "devil stick" is not only marvelous, but in it he is giving the world an entirely new feature. It is, however, with the singing solos, duets, quartet and chorus in the first part that is the real feature of features, and which alone is worth more than the prices asked.

The Columbia Opera Company
The mere announcement that the Columbia Opera company will be seen in Globe in the near future will be received with much satisfaction by the music-loving citizens of Globe. The management has secured this excellent company for a return engagement of four nights commencing Saturday, October 5. The cast of the Columbia Opera company is practically the same as was seen here during their previous engagements. Among the cast of the principals of this popular organization will be found Miss Carlotta Gilman, prima donna; Mr. Charles N. Holmes, leading tenor; Messrs. Ben Lodge and Jack Martin, two comedians of recognized comic opera ability in charge of the comedy roles, with a powerful chorus of pretty girls elegantly costumed.

The operas presented by the Columbia Opera company are of the same high standard that characterized their former appearance in this city. The specialties presented by the Columbia Opera company artists engaged especially for this part of the entertainment never fail to receive the hearty endorsement of the patrons.

WORTHLESS PAPER FOR HORSES
Phoenix Family Acquires Several Horses and then Moves

PHOENIX, Ariz., September 25.—The Shipman family, who left the valley Tuesday after divers deals in horses with various farmers in the valley, carrying off some eight or nine head of fine horses which they had not paid for, has not been heard from. Their notes were given for the unpaid money and there is no recourse through the criminal courts. The only thing that could be done now would be to attach the horses, which may be done if the family is located.

Occasional headaches, belching, bad taste in the mouth, lack of appetite and slight nervousness are symptoms of indigestion which, when allowed to go uncorrected, will develop into a case of dyspepsia that will take a long time to get rid of. Don't neglect your stomach. At the first indication of trouble take something that will help it along in its work of digesting the food you eat. Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia will do this. Kodol will make your food do you good and will enable you to enjoy what you eat. Sold by Hanna's Drug Store.

There are a great many people who have slight attacks of indigestion and dyspepsia nearly all the time. Their food may satisfy the appetite, but it fails to nourish the body simply because the stomach is not in fit condition to do the work it is supposed to do. It can't digest the food you eat. The stomach should be given help. You ought to take something that will do the work your stomach can't do. Kodol for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, a combination of natural digestants and vegetable acids, digests the food itself and gives health and strength to the stomach. Pleasant to take. Sold by Hanna's Drug Store.

D. G. Apin makes the best report yet heard from grapes grown in the Imperial valley, says the Standard. One acre of his eight-acre vineyard is of cornichons, and he kept track of the product of this particular acre. From it there were shipped 395 crates, which were sold in New York for $3.10 a crate, netting Stone Bros., to whom he sold the crop, $1,277 a crate. The gross returns from this acre were $1,224.50, and the returns f. o. b. Imperial were $703.15.

The toad family is supposed to exist upon insects and such, and has never been accused of being a vegetarian. But there is a belief on the part of one vegetable grower in Mesa that toads are fond of young plants. He has out about 100,000 young cabbage plants, in a bed from the seed. For several days he noticed that from two to three plants per day wilted and died. He at first laid it to gophers, but upon investigation discovered that a big toad had burrowed in the ground and followed along under the cabbages, destroying the roots. The toad was caught, killed and a fence put up that is toad-proof.

LIGHTNING KILLS SHEEP
Sixty-three Killed When Bolt Shatters Tree Under which They Stood
A Prescott dispatch says: During a recent thunderstorm in the Williamson valley section, sixty-three head of sheep belonging to C. F. Goodman that sought shelter under a tree were struck by lightning and all instantly killed. A Mexican shepherd, who was standing about one hundred yards distant, was knocked down by the bolt and so badly shocked that he did not regain consciousness for over two hours, although the other herders did all in their power to resuscitate him.

The tree under which the sheep had sought shelter was rent to pieces. No other persons or stock in the immediate vicinity were injured.

The storm was attended by a heavy downpour of rain that swelled some of the creeks over their banks and washed some of the nearby roads into an almost impassable condition.

THEY DISCOVERED RICH MINERAL IN OLD MINE

Specimen Weighing Nearly Twenty-five Pounds Is Valued at $785—Salted a Well

Emil Holden and Henry Cowell of Wickenburg were yesterday exhibiting a chunk of silver and gold matte which had been smelted down from ore obtained from the Rawhide mine in the Bill Williams Fork, four miles from the Montana & Arizona mine, says the Arizona Republican. The mine is now called the Northern Light. The silver specimen weighed 24 1/2 pounds and was valued at $785. It contained besides silver, several ounces of gold. The mine is about sixty years old and was once operated by Mexicans who used to coin silver and had three small smelters on the property in an early day. The ore runs about $80 in copper and gold and silver. There are three groups of claims incorporated, eight in the Northern Light, twelve in the Peraltito and seven in the Rawhide group. Mr. Holden says that the Black Diamond mine will start to work about the first of the month. Mining business has been quiet during the summer, but is picking up with the approach of cooler weather. The reputed finding of gold in Mr. Cox's well was a job fixed by railroad men who secured some brass filings and played a practical joke on the people of the section who flocked to the scene in large numbers as soon as the reported find was made and were breaking their necks to get holdings in the nearby ground. Mr. Holden says that a big strike has been made on the Montana & Arizona property. On the 500-foot level a fine grade of sulphide ore has been encountered and runs thirteen feet wide. This is in the fourth cross-cut of the ledge.

INDIANS WHO FOUGHT WORSHIP TOGETHER

Wonderful Work Being Done by Missionaries Among the Indians of the Territory

For two hundred years they have been meeting to slay and kill, to pillage and rob, but yesterday the Pima and Maricopa Indians met for the first time for peace and common purpose, says the Arizona Democrat.

To worship in common was the motive that brought between four and five hundred of them together at Gila Crossing, the occasion being a joint communion service, arranged by Rev. Richards, who is missionary among the Indians of this part of Arizona.

Such an unusual thing is it for two tribes of Arizona Indians to get together for any other purpose than hurling arrows at each other, that all of the whites who spoke at the religious services during the morning referred to it.

Among the speakers were James Creighton, Dr. H. A. Hughes, Professor George Blount and Indian Agent Gill. Each of them called attention to the bringing together of the Indians, and predicted that it marks the beginning of much friendlier relations between the two tribes.

Several Phoenix people were present at the services, which were held under the auspices of the Presbyterian church. Among them were J. C. H. Boone, Professor Meyers and wife and several of the teachers at the Indian school.

In the evening the Indians had full charge of the services. Several of the younger ones told of their experience with religion, while their fathers and grandfathers, who still hold to the form of worship they have had for centuries, sat stolidly by and listened.
